Introduction To The Laws Of Series

Dr. Sebastian Omlor is Professor of Law and Director of the Institute for Comparative Law at Marburg University School of Law at Saarland University, Germany. He holds a master's degree in EU law (2008) and a PhD degree in corporate law (Dr. iur., 2009) from Saarland University, Germany, and a master's degree from NYU School of Law (2012). The Naval Laws (German: Flottengesetze, "Fleet Laws") were five separate laws passed by the German Empire, in 1898, 1900, 1906, 1908, and 1912. These acts, championed by Kaiser Wilhelm II and his Secretary of State for the Navy, Grand Admiral Alfred von Tirpitz, committed Germany to building up a navy capable of competing with the Royal Navy of the United Kingdom. Geoffrey Wawro, Warfare And Society In Europe 1792-1914 p.78, Routledge (London, 2000). All these issues must be considered in this course. And yet, it is the firm belief of the author that the underlying principles developed for some hundreds of years to control, regulate and ameliorate the frightfulness of war, are just as applicable in the post-9/11 world. GLJ Editorial Message for Issue 20.1. Dear Readers, Winter has been short, but we have used time well and can happily announce: this Issue of the German Law Journal, marking its twentieth anniversary, is the first one published jointly with Cambridge University Press — for all friends of this remarkable project truly a moment to . . .
